

THE UNITED STATES MUST HOLD FOREIGN TRADING PARTNERS ACCOUNTABLE AND ELIMINATE DISCRIMINATORY BARRIERS TO TRADE.

Thanks to price controls, Canada, Japan, and Korea pay less than fair market value for U.S. biopharmaceutical products — and thus stifle the development of new medicines.

Stream ripping is theft. And in Brazil, Japan, and South Africa, this digital piracy deprives American content creators of income.

Government rules in Brazil, South Africa, and elsewhere ignore international standards and allow software developed by U.S. engineers to be used without licenses.

Localization requirements in Indonesia, Brazil, and India unfairly block American manufacturers from selling many goods abroad.

PRICE CONTROLS

ONLINE PIRACY

COPYRIGHT INFRINGEMENT

LOCALIZATION BARRIERS

ALLIANCE
FOR TRADE
ENFORCEMENT

